Interactive Journal of Medical Research

A new general medical journal for the 21st century, focusing on innovation in health and medical research.

Open access | Peer reviewed | PubMed, PubMed Central, DOAJ, Sherpa/Romeo, EBSCO, and ESCI (Clarivate) indexed

The Interactive Journal of Medical Research is an interdisciplinary medical journal uniquely focused on innovation in health, healthcare, and medicine. The term "interactive" in its title reflects the relationships between people, disciplines, organizations, systems, and technology—encompassing human-to-human, human-to-computer/systems, and broader organizational and systemic interactions. This journal publishes research across a wide spectrum of health sciences, including but not limited to cardiology, dermatology, dental sciences, kinesiology, neurology, nursing, nutrition, ophthalmology, and psychiatry.

Innovation, as defined by Interactive Journal of Medical Research, includes studies that present clinically relevant findings, describe new medical techniques, report unique medical cases, or identify emerging trends in current literature.
